Mission Critical Symposium 2019

YOU ARE INVITED TO JOIN US AS WE PRESENT

our most valuable mission critical solutions showcasing our leading digital technologies, and complete product portfolio

Hytera as a leading designer and provider of professional mission critical, disaster management and mobile radio solutions, is dedicated to bring the most valuable and customized solutions to clients across the world.

As cities develop and science and technology evolves dramatically, the public expect more public security management. In addition to traditional modes to handle natural disasters, public emergencies, security and crime events, public security management must also implement control over key areas to prevent crimes efficiently based on technologies such as powerful information platforms, big data systems, rapid response, flat command, joint operation and effective prevention.

We offer complete and customized solutions to public security, utility, transportation, enterprise and Business. With our state-of-the-art technology, we can provide high quality voice services, high speed data services and abundant applications. Hytera as leading provider of PMR thermal and system equipment, keeps turning mature and advanced technologies into solutions, attentively responding to customer demands, delivering solutions that facilitate digitization, provide higher organizational efficiency through our complete DMR portfolio which is fully compliant to ETSI DMR open standard.

Our integrated command and control system integrates wired and wireless command and control systems, Geographic Information Systems (GIS), large screen display and graphic systems, and implements centralized incident taking, unified command, information sharing, rapid response and effective prevention. It merges high technologies and police services perfectly and greatly enhances the capability of the public security system and associated government agencies to respond rapidly, act jointly, make policies and command.

Mission Critical Symposium 2019

The Hytera Mission Critical Symposium 2019 is more than just another symposium or place for government and senior public safety professionals to meet and discuss the latest disaster management and/or mission critical trends and technologies. It's more than just an international learning environment for subject matter experts, and it's more than a place to experience great networking and social opportunities with like minded peers.

It's a place for all of this, but most importantly it's a place where we will join forces to craft and design mission critical solutions for tomorrow. It is a place where we will present and showcase leading digital technologies, innovative user-orientated product designs and more integrated, agile, adoptive, responsive and successful mission critical and disaster management solutions.
